Modeling spatial components for complexely associated urban data

Harry Haupt, Universität Passau, Deutschland

We discuss examples of association patterns in urban data leading to complex dependences and heterogeneities. Some strands of existing parametric and semiparametric approaches in the literature are discussed as well as challenges and opportunities of data driven nonparametric alternatives.